Miss Patten's Rumored Engagement to James G. Blaine, Jr.

Mrs. Cleveland's Visitors at Gray Gables-Senor Sagrario's Eventful Journey to Bogota.

Rumors of the engagement of Miss Josephine Patten to Mr. James G. Biaine, jr., are being freely discussed by friends of both parties. The wedding is looked for in the early autumn. Yet formalities of creed may delay the interesting event. Miss Patten's church decidedly opposes marriage with a divorcee, but whether this will prevent the consumpation of the engagement or not the future must decide

Mrs. Cleveland is receiving the calls of er friends at Buzzard's Bay. Monday was quite in the nature of a reception day with her, as among the callers were Mrs. Bissell and her mother, Mrs. Sturgis, and Mrs. Henry Thurber.

These callers went over to Gray Gables by train, but late in the evening returned o the hotel in Mr. Benedict's yacht.

An inspection of the new buby was, of course, the great feature of the call, and Miss Marion Cleveland received sufficient lation to have completely turned her mad had she been sufficiently wide awake to take in all of the complimentary things and of her and to her.

The formal introduction of Miss Vander-tili, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at Newport on Tuesdayevening. was the occasion of the gathering of quite a large party of Washingtonians. Mr. Whitney's vacht is headed for Sorrento where, after landing, he goes direct to the Fort Hill, S. C. summer residence of the Secretary of War. There he not infrequently spends the en-trie day or afternoon as the case may be, lunching or dining informally with Secretary and Mrs. Lamont.

The conversation at such times, while for the most part of a general nature, nevertheless holds considerable import for the political world. The ex-Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of War have accomplished no little in this matter during the present summer, and before they turn their faces homeward will doubtless add still

This plan of Mr. Whitney and Secretary Lamont holding important business and political conferences together is by no means a new one. It was, in fact, instituted many years ago when, during the first Cleveland dministration, the two men, so prominent in political life, spent their first summer on the coast of Maine.

At that time Mr. Whitney was a member of the President's Cabinet, but the present Secretary of War, although but the President's private secretary, was hardly less of an important political factor than now. As such he was recognized by Mr. Whitney, who then, as now, made frequent visits to Col. Lamont's quiet place at Sorrento for the purpose not only of enjoying the occasion socially, but of including impor-tant political conferences in those visits.

ADO ABOUT A BURGLAR. Policemen and Armed Citizens

Alarmed by Innocent Spores. The neighborhood of Ninth and R streets orthwest about 2 o'clock yesterday morning was thrown into a state of great excitement when it was discovered by Mr. E. Phillips, on R street, that burglars were upon his roof.

He shouted from a second-story window for the police with a voice that not only frightened away every thief within a radius of three squares, but also aroused the entire neighborhood. When Policeman William F. Barrett put in an appearance and called the patrol wagon, contaming Patrol Officer Charles Bremmerman, to his aid half the residents thereabouts were shouting and pandemonium reigned.

After quiet had been partly restored the policemen were piloted by a dozen citizens to a vacant house at No. 913 H street, where it was reported a regiment of burglars were holding forth. An entrance was gained and a thorough search made, but nothing was discovered.

Then a deep snoring was heard in some body's back yard. After a search the policemen, pistols in hand, and backed up by a dozen hatless and contless men armed with guns, knives, and hatchers, found the point from which the snore came. It was shed in the rear of the row of houses.

The door was forced, and a thoroughly frightened negro came out of the darkness. He was identified as a servant about the place and proper character, and the patrol wagon relied back once more to the stationouse, while a score or two of citizens re-
